Update: Adjustment to Booking Class

As previously communicated on January 17, our G booking class has moved to our lowest selling economy cabin retail fare.

In the upcoming month, our N booking class will be a dedicated redemption and upgrade class, and A booking class will move to the Premium Economy cabin, which will provide three dedicated retail selling classes:

- O – will remain Premium Economy Flexible
- E – will remain Premium Economy Lowest
- A – dedicated (replacing N) Premium Economy Lowest

Additionally, effective February 22, customers currently holding A booking class will be re-accommodated into K booking class.

What does this mean for you?

For 014 issued tickets:

- No action is required, as Air Canada will update the booking class and revalidate the ticket.
- The change will appear in the history of the PNR.
- If your passenger has pending eUpgrade requests, please verify their request or re-request, if required.

For tickets issued on Other Airline:

- You will receive a Schedule Change notification, indicating UN status for A-class and TK status for K-class. Please ensure to action the Schedule Change notice accordingly.
