 - If the new fare is lower than the price of the original ticket, the residual amount may be refunded
 - ARC agencies may issue residual value in the form of a MCO
 - BSP agencies may apply for the residual value in the form of a travel voucher through BSPLink Refund Application (RA) once travel is complete
 - The voucher will be issued in the name of the ticketed customer and the travel voucher will be mailed directly to the travel agency

Note: Change to country of origin may be allowed if the fare on the new itinerary is published in the same currency as the ticketed fare. Leisure fares may be restricted to specific regions

Reissue Policy Information

Travel agents may rebook and reissue tickets as an even exchange provided the below guidelines are met and applied:

- Ticket issued on AA 001 ticket stock
- Applies to AA*/oneworld flights
- Travel has not commenced on the affected flight segment and the ticket has not been reissued by American Airlines
- The first departure flight is more than 3 hours away
- Affected coupons are in OK status
- Travel reissuance only in accordance to dates identified in this reduction of service policy
- In order to qualify for even exchange, the new itinerary must be booked in the original ticketed inventory or equivalent RBD for the codeshare carrier. Reissue ticket at original ticketed fare

- Note: any increase in taxes must be collected
- Any change made to the origin, destination, or booking class requires repricing and applicable fare difference applies
- More than one change allowed without an additional collection, including penalty within the suspension of service dates within ticket validity
- Original issuing agency responsible for ticket reissue
- Ticket Revalidation not permitted
- Basic Economy must be rebooked up B inventory in the main cabin
- Please ensure the above procedures are accurately followed to prevent debit memo issuance
- Changes outside of these guidelines are subject to the reissue rules of the ticketed fare

Endorsement Box Requirement

- Endorsement Box must include: SKCHG/ ASIA22
- Ticket Reissue required. This is the only required verbiage and supersedes all other information.
